Inega was established in the early 90's when it began its first venture by producing the stage show, Grease Lightening. It then went on to sourcing international performance troupes for events in India. The company later pioneered a new ground in the fashion industry when it opened the first ever, International-Indian Modeling Agency in Mumbai.

As Inega crosses its fifteenth year, it continues to grow and now operates through three divisions representing; Models, Talent and Production. It has also distinguished itself as a preferred vendor for advertising agencies, production houses, photographers, motion pictures, magazines and other agencies worldwide.

Our mission is to continuously provide the best talent pool under one umbrella and to deliver optimum value to the companies that partner with us.

Inega's unwavering personal approach to models and clients provides a boutique agency feel that firmly maintains Inega's industry position both locally and internationally.
